

Michelle Hettmann

Director of Communications

Michelle (she/her) grew up in the Northern VA area before moving away for college/grad school. She studied Human Development at Virginia Tech (go Hokies!) and then moved to Atlanta, GA to pursue her MDiv at Emory's Candler School of Theology. She graduated from Emory in 2019 and worked on staff at a United Methodist church plant in a variety of roles including children's ministry, community outreach, and communications. She will still be living in Atlanta, but her family is all in Virginia (Haymarket and Centreville) so she is thrilled to have an excuse to come home more often!

In her spare time, she loves trying out new low-waste gluten free/vegetarian recipes, discovering new thrift stores, and watching the latest Netflix original series. Michelle is passionate about environmental justice and the role of people of faith in the fight for climate justice. On the weekends, her favorite place to be is in a park on a picnic blanket with some good food and friends.
